challenge:

leveraging analytical tools prior to review

A Fortune 50 company provided Epiq with 600 GB of data that needed to be filtered, de-duplicated and processed. The timeline was tight, and review needed to start immediately.

Epiq clustered the document collection and in just a few hours the client conducted an initial assessment of the data. Rapidly identifying thousands of documents as “junk,” the client also zeroed in on seemingly relevant documents, prioritizing them for immediate review.

and utilizing epiq review accelerators,

With a smaller data set and deeper understanding of the information, the attorneys then leveraged Epiq’s review accelerators into their workflow to evaluate related documents together instead of individually.

- Of the 3.5 million emails, 40% were contained within the final email message of a thread.
- 20% of non-email documents were near duplicates, such as a Word document and its PDF version.

a company dramatically cuts its discovery costs

By utilizing these powerful DocuMatrix™ tools, the attorneys’ average review rate exceeded 120 documents per hour. Overall, they reduced their review hours by 66%, achieving hundreds of thousands of dollars in savings.
